THE TRUST

Siddhargal Thiruvadi Seva Trust is a non-profit organization engaged in social responsibility activities through a variety of projects and undertakings aimed at the physical, social, and spiritual upliftment of all.

ANNADHANAM

A fundamental aspect of sustaining these endeavours is food. At the Trust, Annadhanam, the sacred offering of food, is served to hundreds of people, including the impoverished, the homeless, roadside dwellers, orphans, sanyasis, volunteers, bramhacharis, and those facing extreme poverty. Annadhanam is provided in and around Chennai at roadside locations, temples, siddhar samadhis, and various other places, embodying the tradition of offering "alms" or "food."

Currently, we manage to provide meals weekly, sometimes twice, but our goal is "Nitya (Daily) Annadhanam", which means offering food daily to everyone. This initiative aims to alleviate hunger for at least hundreds to thousands of people. Over the past few years, Siddhargal Thiruvadi Seva Trust has grown significantly, attracting a large number of members.

As more individuals are inspired by this divine possibility, there's been an increase in those seeking to deepen their spiritual journey and contribute to the humanitarian services the Trust offers to the world. With the Trust's growth, the need for resources to support its activities also increases.

Marking important occasions such as birthdays, anniversaries, or any other day of your choice by offering "Annadhanam" can be a meaningful way to spread joy, health, and wellbeing as part of Siddhargal Thiruvadi Seva Trust's mission.

TEMPLE RENOVATION

Temple renovation, reconstruction, and Kumbabhishekam are considered highly noble deeds. We should all contribute in any way we can to earn “Punya Karma”. Even a small offering, such as a brick, sand, cement, stone, statue and shivlinga contributes to our spiritual merit, as it ensures our presence in “Kailash or Vaikuntha” for as long as the brick / stone remains in the temple. Assisting the needy in marriage and performing “Shiva Puja” with offerings is also seen as very noble. The offerings can be as simple as a fruit, flower, or camphor, but the spiritual rewards are significant. Since 2020, Siddhargal Thiruvadi Seva Trust has been engaged in such holy activities, providing financial assistance and materials for eligible temple renovations or re-constructions.

OLI ETRUVOM – LIGHTING TO TEMPLE

In Hindu temples, lighting diyas is a sacred ritual that transcends the mundane, connecting the spiritual with the earthly. It symbolizes hope, guidance, and divine blessings. These clay oil lamps represent the dispelling of darkness and the illumination of the spiritual path. For devotees, the soft glow of these lamps is a reminder of the eternal light guiding their journey toward enlightenment. Lighting diyas invites divine presence into the temple, symbolizing the triumph of light over ignorance and spiritual enlightenment. It's a gesture of respect to the deities, acknowledging their presence and seeking blessings.

This tradition, deeply rooted in Hinduism, fosters continuity and connection with the past. It transcends cultural and regional boundaries, uniting devotees in a shared spiritual practice.

Siddhargal Thiruvadi Seva Trust has observed that many Siddhar Jeeva Samadhis in Tamil Nadu lack the means for daily lighting and remain in darkness. Some are even without a proper structure. To address this, the Trust has committed to providing oil and Abhishek items for a month or a specific duration to ensure these sacred sites are properly maintained.
